THE KINGDOM COMES TO QUEEN'S ELM

Cill Rialaig Presents
AN EXHIBITION OF ART

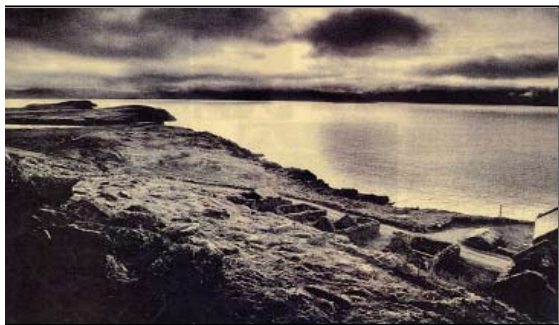

OPENING OF THE ENVELOPE BY DIARMUID GAVIN special guest HUGHIE O'DONOGHUE

Cill Rialaig village (c. 1790), set high on a cliff at the very edge of Western Europe was Phase one of a self help three part economic and social plan for the much neglected Gaeltacht area (Irish speaking) of Ballinskelligs, Co Kerry. It involves the rescue and redevelopment of the pre-famine village of Cill Rialaig as a retreat for artists, poets, writers and composers of national and international repute. The Cill Rialaig Project founded by Dr. Noelle Campbell-Sharp is a voluntary body a company limited by guarantee whose main aim is to develop and maintain a retreat for artists and writers from Ireland and abroad. Already seven studios and a utility house have been completed at the village. Over 2500 artists from Ireland, Northern Ireland, the UK, Europe, Russia, the US, South America, Canada, China, Japan and Australia have enjoyed the experience which they claim has impacted on their work and careers. Accommodation is free of charge in self-catering individual house-studios. A communal house (Tig an Comhra - conversation house) where visiting artists can meet one another and the local people, their language, music and culture, is now complete and was in 2008 dedicated by President McAleese to the memory of the village's most famous early inhabitant, seannachai (story teller) Sean O'Connail. Over 250,000 applications have been received from all over the world for residencies. Open all year round.

The retreat does not have a website in view of its special location and its unique ethos of isolation and eremitic like living and working space. The retreat nearly 20 years old is mainly funded by its founding patrons , fund raising events and new patrons grants. The Arts Council have given a small anual grant and it is hoped this might increase in coming years. Culture Ireland have supported this first London event.

Artists are invited to apply for residencies all year round. For application forms and details email cillrialraig@gmail.com.
